Riverside Cemetery awarded erosion funding

By ALISON ALOISIO
Help is on the way for the eroding riverbank at the Riverside Cemetery in Bethel. The Natural Resources Conservation Service last Friday approved money from the Emergency Watershed Protection Fund to repair the bank, according to Peter Marcinuk, district conservationist for the Natural Resources Conservation Service.

The amount awarded was not available at press time.

The cost of the necessary work has been estimated at $150,000.

Marcinuk has estimated that $150,000 would be needed to shape the bank and place stones to stop the erosion. The Androscoggin River has been steadily eating its way toward several graves, including that of Revolutionary War soldier Eli Twitchell. The river is about 25 feet from the Twitchell grave. Another grave is less than eight feet from the bank. The Riverside Cemetery Association applied last year for the grant. Marcinuk has been advising the association on the process. A 25 percent local match would be required to go with the grant. It could be in the form of money or in-kind services, Marcinuk said.

Selectmen, Budget Committee prefer funding come from private sources or sewer district

By MICHAEL DANIELS
The ball is now in the developer's court. "I'm going to process a lot of this tomorrow," said Mike Pelletier, during a joint meeting Monday of the Bethel Board of Selectmen and Budget Committee. Pelletier has begun construction of Twitchell Brook Estates, a 22-unit condominium project in Mayville, across Route 2 from the Bethel Irving. His current plan calls for using a private septic system for waste disposal, but if the town sewer line could be extended from its current terminus (at the Androscoggin River recreational bridge) to Pelletier's project, he could potentially build as many as 38 condos on the site.

Such an extension would require building a 3,200-foot force main and installing a pump station. The estimated cost of the project is $525,000, of which Pelletier has offered to contribute $100,000. Monday evening's joint meeting of the selectmen and Budget Committee was called to address two questions raised by Pelletier's offer: should the town attempt to raise the balance needed for the project, and if so, how? Members of the two boards spent well over an hour and a half discussing the complicated options and implications — primarily financial — involved in extending the sewer.

New G'wood fire chief has long resume, commute

By MICHAEL DANIELS
Professional qualifications outweighed geographic unsuitability when Greenwood selectmen selected a new fire chief for the town. At this year's annual Town Meeting in March, the selectmen convinced voters to approve a new Fire Department Ordinance that included a requirement that all new firefighters either live in the town, or live or work within 20 minutes of the Locke Mills fire station. But on Tuesday the selectmen waived that requirement (as the ordinance allows them to do) and appointed a fire chief who lives 35 to 40 minutes away, in Poland. The new chief, James Owens, brings with him an extensive professional resume. He has spent 32 years as a career firefighter for the U.S. Department of Defense, serving at several military bases. He also served as a fire prevention inspector and is currently employed as a fire lieutenant at Brunswick Naval Air Station. And he has been a volunteer firefighter in both large and small fire departments, including the Poland Fire Department.

Owens was one of four "highly qualified" candidates interviewed for the position, according to Town Manager Kim Sparks. (No Greenwood firefighters applied for the position, she said.) In the end, Owens was the unanimous choice of a search committee made up of two selectmen, three firefighters and

'The gold's the thing, wherein ...'

The Maine Performing Arts Festival concluded Sunday. The five-day event featured daily theatre and street performances. Here, in a dress rehearsal scene from "Golden Lies," actor Mark Friedlander, playing the role of a thief, tries to convince 'maidservant' Liat Ron, who cannot tell a lie, that the gold she has in her hand will help her tell lies — specifically, to the king.

First Performing Arts Festival plays to strong reviews and small — but steadily growing — audiences

By ALISON ALOISIO
Performances at the first Maine Performing Arts Festival last week got good reviews, but attendance numbers were mixed. Organizers plan to build on the quality acts and work to boost the turnout for next year. The five-day festival included nightly theatre performances and daily busker (street) performances on the common. "We found it impossible to predict attendance, but we had surely hoped for larger audiences than we got, particularly for the buskers," said Dutch Dresser, president of the MPAF Board of Directors. "Theatre attendance grew steadily with each performance, with the strongest attendance on Sunday evening," Dresser said. "Ways to draw larger crowds will certainly be at the top of our list during early planning for next year." The goal of the festival was to begin establishing Bethel as a summer performing arts destination, Dresser said, through good regionwide publicity and excellent performances. He said the festival was successful in doing that.

"Artistic Director Andrew Harris put together a highly professional troupe of performers in three short weeks, and Fred Nolte attracted buskers of extraordinary talent," said Dresser. He said the performers enjoyed their time in Bethel, and many want to return next year. "All the performers remarked on how well-received they felt and how friendly Bethel is," he said. "Many felt they'd been 'vacationing' in Bethel, even as they worked. The word that goes out from these people will stand us in good stead as the program grows and evolves."

W'stock ATVers slow down and organize

By ALISON ALOISIO
An effort is underway to establish an ATV club in Woodstock. Bill Bouchard, a summer resident of Concord Pond, is among the organizers. "There's an increased interest in ATV riding," said Bouchard. "We want to organize a club to ensure people are riding correctly." The new organization would be known as the Woodstock ATV Riders Club. A meeting for anyone interested will take place Sept. 1 at 6 p.m. at the Woodstock Town Office Conference Room. "We've talked to snowmobile clubs who are interested in working with us," said Bouchard. Representatives from both sports have discussed the possibility of joint maintenance of trails, he said. A small group of ATVers met informally recently at Concord Pond to talk about a club. Bouchard said that since a section of the Concord Pond Road was opened to ATV use last year, riders have been operating more safely on the road. Before it became legal, he said, some riders would speed

THAT SAW DOESN'T CUT

To the Editor
There are saws that cut, others that don't. Recent discussion of extending the sewer system to Mayville showed us one that doesn't, the old saw that communities ought to support development because of the taxes it generates.
For decades reports from communities across the country have described a less mythical picture: taxes are generated, to be sure, but they do not begin to cover the increased costs of infrastructure and municipal services which development brings with it. You can cut that board as many times as you like; it'll still be too short.

DISCONTINUE THE DISCUSSIONS

To the Editor
I am writing this letter in regard to an upcoming Chamber membership vote that will take place on Aug. 23, 2006.
There have been listening sessions and roundtable talks this summer. Though I was unable to attend all the discussions, and do not have the minutes from these discussions (though I asked for them), I have had many conversations with those that did attend.
The subject matter of these discussions is primarily based on the future of Bethel and our surrounding communities. There have been speakers that have come to town to debate such issues as land use, urban sprawl and the general planning of the town.
It's my opinion that the town of Bethel and the surrounding areas do not need out-of-town consultants planning Bethel's future. I ask, "Why are they here? What does the chamber feel has gone wrong here?"
We already have a Planning Board, selectmen and a CEO that are doing an excellent job in town. Why would we even consider having others plan our future and recommend stricter land use regulations and zoning?
I would like to discontinue these discussions and will vote accordingly on Aug. 23.

HAPPILY SEEKING SCARECROWS

To the Editor:
The Oxford County Fair Agricultural Museum is looking for scarecrows again.
Last year the museum had some wonderful scarecrows for all to see, and we hope to double that this year. Any group, individual, school or child can make a scarecrow to enter.
The scarecrows must be able to stand alone outdoors. Scarecrows can be brought to the museum at the Fairgrounds between 3 and 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 13. Registration form will be available at that time. Judging will be done and ribbons presented on Thursday, Sept. 14.
The scarecrows will be available for everyone to see on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, but must be picked up between 3 and 7 p.m. on Saturday.
Let's fill the area around the museum with fun scarecrows. For further information call Joan Putnam at 665-2478 or e-mail jputnam@megalink.net with scarecrow in the subject line.
See you at the Fair.

ARTS FESTIVAL THANKS

To the Editor:
On behalf of the board of directors of the Maine Performing Arts Festival and all the volunteers who made this first season possible, I'd like to offer genuine thanks to the townspeople of Bethel and the surrounding communities for: 1) participating as you did in the inaugural season; 2) welcoming actors, interns, buskers, and main stage performers with typical Bethel hospitality; 3) volunteering to spend hours in ticket booths, ushering attendees at the theatre, picking up after performances on the common and in the auditorium, housing and feeding the cast, and performing myriad other logistical tasks; and, 4) simply sharing our town with folks from away.
We look forward to providing this readership with a more detailed report on the success of this first season very soon.
I would also like to offer apologies for not acknowledging in the theatre program the Western Mountain Senior College, which offered two separate evening presentations earlier in the summer that we hoped would attract the interest of those who wanted to know more about theatre and could therefore enjoy the Festival to a greater degree.
Lastly, you should all know that the Southam cited on the donor page of the theatre program is not Tom but really our own Peter Southam!
With thanks again to all who helped pull off this first season!

LEAVE PLANNING TO THE LANDOWNERS

To the Editor:
Recently, in an effort to promote the region, the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce via its executive director and board of directors has linked itself closely with three very controversial issues, the Scenic Byway, the Mahoosuc Regional Resource Report and The National Heritage Area.
On the surface all of these issues are like motherhood and apple pie, they appear to promote values and ideas that all are in favor of. However, when you dig deeper and discover the strings that are attached and the potential for harm to private landowners, one has to question the motives and wisdom of supporting such initiatives.
The planning of land use is best left to the people that have done it so effectively for the past 200 years — the landowners who pay the taxes, not to any group of self-appointed elitists who feel they know what's best for everyone.
If the chamber truly wants to "encourage a climate where business can flourish" it should begin an effort to repeal the staggering number of sign and land use ordinances already in effect in Bethel.

NOT IN OUR BEST INTEREST

To the Editor:
As a local landowner and forest manager I am concerned that the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce is actively supporting activities that are not in the best long-term interest of the area and many of the area businesses.
With the chamber's support of the National Scenic Byways initiative, the National Maine Mountain Heritage Area and the Mahoosuc Initiative come further layers of bureaucracy and regulations all of which have a negative impact on many businesses in the chamber membership area.
While I support: Responsible and quality land management including development; Change to existing regulations, rules, laws, etc., as needed — strengthening or relaxing; Private property rights; I oppose: Additional regulatory authorities, additional layers of planners, additional bureaucracies, additional zoning and eminent domain authorities.
There is no question that business owner's working within present guidelines can plan the future of their property better than the chamber and/or its affiliates can.
It is unacceptable for the chamber to promote initiatives, including social and/or environmental agendas that have a negative impact on certain businesses in the community for the benefit of other businesses in the community.
The fact is the chamber is not adhering to its Mission. The chamber bylaws state: "The Mission of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce, Inc., shall be to encourage a climate where business in the membership area can flourish and choose programs that can actively pursue this goal."
While the recent actions of the chamber may meet its mission as it applies to the tourism and retail businesses, it is being done at the expense of many contractors, developers, landowners, retailers and people in the farming and timber industry.
We feel that the chamber should support programs and work with issues that will not divide the business community. The chamber should support issues that are consistent with common goals and problems of all the business community.

REMEMBERING ELIZABETH MASON CARTER

To the Editor:
One of the signal persons of my childhood died in May after a long illness. Elizabeth Mason Carter (1907-2006) was related to both my parents, on the Kimball side with my father and on the Hale line with my mother. My father lived with her parents at what is known as Sunset Farm today when he attended Gould Academy in the 1930s. Elizabeth's father, Herman Mason (1874-1961), was a neighbor and lifelong friend of my maternal grandfather, Harold Stanley (1878-1970). In fact, at one time, they shared a game business at the local fairs, where my grandfather was a barker, a role that I found thoroughly inconsistent with the person I came to know much later.
In any case, Elizabeth always figured in our lives as long as her parents lived. It was a ritual that every Christmas our whole family visited her parents in the home in West Bethel where they moved in the 1940s. Her mother, Pauline (1882-1973), was always very interested in our activities and often Elizabeth would make her commentary on our lives as well.
When I was about twelve or thirteen, my brother (two years younger) and I visited our great uncle and aunt in Boston, spending a week or so, seeing all the sights of the area. It was quite a thrill for us to use the MTA and tour such buildings as Paul Revere's House and the Old North Church, plus climb the Bunker Hill Monument and view the famous glass flowers at Harvard University. When we returned home, we had an even greater thrill by traveling by train from Boston to Portland, where we were met at that architectural gem, Union Station (soon to be unfortunately demolished) by Elizabeth, who proceeded to ask us all kinds of questions about our trip and then give us the history and running commentary on everything in sight all the way back to Bethel. That was our first long-term exposure to Elizabeth, which proved unforgettable even for ones so young.
From then on, we saw her briefly each year at Christmas until her mother went to a nursing home. We recall her as one who loved to talk, but seemed to have a knack for endearing herself to children. In fact, throughout her life, Elizabeth made friends with all kinds of children. As I grew older, I was quite surprised and impressed at how many young lives she touched in very positive ways.
When I returned to Bethel in the fall of 1973, the contact became more frequent. Often she would call my family's home and one of us there at the time, my father, mother or me would be held hostage on the phone for literally hours. She had tremendous stamina for talking and I soon learned she also commanded a masterful way of turning every conversation to a monologue where she provided numerous details of her childhood growing up in Bethel and usually followed by an exceedingly comprehensive commentary on her life experiences later as an adult. In order to "survive" Elizabeth's long calls, one had to develop excuses or exit strategies to get off the phone or simply set the phone down and go about one's business. She never seemed to notice if one left for awhile provided you came back periodically to mutter a "hmmmm" at the proper interval.
Once I became the executive director of the Bethel Historical Society, she visited regularly and often attended society meetings and special events. After each of these occasions, there was frequently an explicit commentary on just what she thought of many of those she encountered. While she was usually pleased with the general direction of the society she had helped found, she did not hesitate to tell me in no uncertain terms what was good and what she believed was "not up to her standards." I found it most interesting sometimes to discover whom she considered the people worth knowing in contrast to those she found wanting in character, morals, or qualities she deemed essential for her to render a favorable impression.
Through the years, we dealt with Elizabeth through everything from Mason and Kimball family reunions held at the Society in which she played a leading (and often domineering) role to the Indian Raid Bicentennial observance where she chaired the exhibition committee. It was soon evident that no mere mortal could do the job as well as she did. She often told me just what were the personal deficiencies of all involved. Is it any wonder then that her record before I arrived at the Society was one where members found her exasperating as a trustee and committee head?
Most of the time, however, she and I managed to work out our strong differences of opinion. One memorable time that we clashed was the occasion prior to a Kimball Family reunion when we installed an exhibit on historic preservation in Maine on loan from what is today Maine Preservation. She happened to come into the Society just as we were hanging the last item and brusquely told me that the exhibit would "have to go since Gordon Kimball [Maine Kimball family president] would not like it." I promptly and firmly told her that I did not care what Gordon Kimball thought; the exhibit was staying up! When Gordon Kimball saw the exhibit, he commented to me how much he and the other visitors appreciated viewing it and thanked us for sharing it with the Maine Kimballs. With the greatest speed, I told him to inform Elizabeth of his opinion and he did. Not missing a beat, she assured him that she had been instrumental in urging me to acquire the exhibit and have it available for this reunion. I said nothing at the time, but later laughed about her taking the credit for something she had earlier so heartily rejected.
My mind is full of all kinds of Elizabeth stories, but space only allows me to mention a few. For several years, my father provided Elizabeth with firewood from his woodlot. She told him once that she did not want any beech since her mother had experienced difficulty burning that particular wood. At the time, my father was cutting beech that had developed blight, so that is exactly what he provided her, believing correctly that she would not realize the difference. Later she told him that she was not certain what species of wood she had acquired from him, but it was the best wood she had ever burned. My father never told her the difference, which was undoubtedly the wisest course knowing her as well as he did.
Another time, Elizabeth, who possessed a lifelong devotion to animals, especially dogs, horses and cats had a large cat named "Samantha Snowshoes" that she claimed loved to dance with her. When she told me about this cat in the presence of one of my friends, who had accompanied me to her home on an errand, his skeptical look prompted her to put on a recording of a waltz and dance across her living room with the cat, who certainly appeared to enjoy it as much as Elizabeth did. Needless to say, my friend and I still laugh about that very memorable scene.
Elizabeth was sometimes unconventional in her views and humor. One of my favorite stories she told with obvious relish was the time her father decided to move his father's corpse from Woodland Cemetery to Riverside. When the body of William Mason (1834-1892) was exhumed, it was determined that one of his legs was inexplicably missing and could not be found. From that time on, Elizabeth proudly announced to all that her grandfather had a foot in both graveyards.
By the mid-1990s, it became increasingly clear that Elizabeth's once very keen mind was failing.
A "remembering time" for Elizabeth will be held at the Middle Intervale Meetinghouse on Sunday, Aug. 20, at 3 p.m. with burial of her ashes in her lot in the adjoining Middle Intervale Cemetery. All interested persons are cordially invited to attend.

First trails in new ATV park open

BERLIN, N.H.—New trails for all-terrain vehicles have opened around Jericho Lake, and the first riders are sending back good reviews. "There are a lot of nice views and the trails are very nice," said Kathy Cardinal, of Farmington. "They were very clean and the riding was good, not rough at all." About 18 miles of trail have been opened at a new state park that will eventually offer about 250 miles of trail riding over more than 7,200 acres near the White Mountain National Forest. The president of the Merrimack Valley Trail Riders, Tom Levesque, said the new trails are very much needed. State officials are continuing work on a master plan for the entire park, which has yet to be named.

Mayville

There appeared to be general consensus that further development is coming to Mayville, and that extending the sewer line would further stimulate such development. And most — not all — of those present appeared to believe that further development in Mayville would ultimately benefit town taxpayers and sewer system ratepayers.

But no one present Monday was ready to commit town tax money to the project.

In the end, no votes were taken, but members of the two boards did agree to the following priorities proposed by Stan Howe, chairman of the Board of Selectmen.

First, that if the project is to go ahead, the boards would like to see the “highest possible private financing that we can obtain.”

Second, that if private funding is not sufficient, the balance of money for the project be found “within the sewer district itself.”

“We’re not going to go to the general taxpayer for it,” said Selectman Dennis Doyon.

“No,” agreed Howe, “we want to avoid that.”

Nonetheless, the possibility of financing the extension back to the selectmen at a later meeting with a more comprehensive financing commitment, including details regarding how any financial exposure of the town would be covered between the time the sewer line is extended and all the condos are sold (and begin to generate revenue back to the sewer budget).

(Note: For more on Mayville and the current sewer proposal, see Don Bennett’s “Remodeling Mayville: The impact of extending Bethel’s sewer,” the first of a two-part series, beginning in this week’s Bethel town column. “Remodeling Mayville” begins on Page 5.)

‘We’re not going to go to the taxpayers for it.’

Fire Chief

herself, Sparks said.

Owens replaces former Fire Chief Ray Seames, who resigned in early April, following the Town Meeting vote to approve the new Fire Department Ordinance.

Seames had argued against the ordinance at Town Meeting.

A new ordinance was indeed needed, he said, but he believed the one in front of the voters was flawed in several important respects — including the procedure for selecting a chief.

Seames remains in the department as a firefighter.

The period leading up to and following Seames’ resignation as chief was one of turmoil for the Greenwood Department, and Owens said rebuilding the department with qualified firefighters will be one of his first challenges.

He will also be addressing several violations found during an April “Safety Works” inspection by the Maine Department of Labor.

In his letter applying for the Greenwood position, Owens wrote: “During my career I have found that my strengths lean toward the administrative operation of a fire department. Preparing reports, organizing systems, developing plans and procedures is something I feel comfortable doing and do well.”

He noted that he also “had training and experience in command functions.”

At Tuesday’s meeting, Wayne Hakala, himself a former firefighter, said: “I think our new chief has quite a bit of work in front of him.”

Owens concurred. “I was looking for a challenge, and I think I found one,” he said.

But, he added, “It could be that old thing too: be careful what you wish for — you might get it.”

Owens will be paid a base stipend of $200 a week, for a minimum of 15 hours work, Sparks said.

He will be paid an additional $15 an hour while responding to calls, she said.

Owens is married and has three grown sons, one of whom is a firefighter in Washington, D.C.

His wife, Vicki, is a nurse at St. Mary’s Hospital in Lewiston.

Owens said Wednesday that he plans to retire from his Department of Defense position after the first of the year, and he and his wife are looking to relocate a bit closer, to the Oxford-South Paris area.

The selectmen plan to hold an open house at the fire station in the near future, to give Owens and town residents a chance to get acquainted.

along the road to get from one place to another quickly to avoid detection.

A three-mile stretch of the road was opened to ATVs on a one-year trial basis. Because the legal use has worked out well, Woodstock selectmen recently approved extending the time frame for permission to operate for another year.

“It’s nice to have road access,” said Bouchard.

With the establishment of a club, he said, ATVs can organize group rides and, by working with the snowmobile clubs, expand the recreational opportunities for riders.

“People will be able to ride year round,” he said.

Anyone with questions regarding the meeting may call 364-3275 or 364-9082.

From Gary Szpara at Rooster’s Roadhouse we hear that Telstar Class of 1981 had their 25th Reunion Dinner there. They feasted on fresh Maine Haddock, Roadhouse Prime Rib and Roasted Stuffed Chicken — had a jubilant time! Music was provided by Peter Morton. Michele Cox of the class did a very skillful job of organizing the party. In other news from the restaurant Gary reports that lobsters are still going strong. Tourists continually seem fascinated by getting a whole lobster. Michelle Mador, one of our ace servers (she also owns the Pleasant River Campground with husband Mike) stands by to break the lobster apart for them! She even has to show them how to eat the lobster in some cases. We’re still selling a lot of Maine fried shrimp which we get from Round Pond, Maine where my partner Steve’s sister and husband own a wholesale lobster dock. We count ourselves lucky to get really first-class shrimp and lobster from them. Locally grown sweet corn is a hot item right now of course. We serve corn from Swain’s Farm with our dinners and our customers keep telling us how great the corn is and then ask directions to the farm stand — which we gladly give.

Work on the first Mayville Junction Condo continued last week. The second floor residential section is getting attention now with the old garage roof sprouting dormer window sections. A new septic system went in about 10 days ago.

From the Briefly Noted department: Tom White should be on his way to Cleveland, Ohio now with a load of bronze sculptured figures in the back his pickup. And Jeff Parsons is having fun running back and forth with his tractor carrying loam to surface a new "championship" croquet course between his main building and the canoe launching area.

Much time has been spent this past week on getting together pertinent information for the town fathers and budget committee meeting aimed at answering more Mayville sewer line questions. So that we don't lose sight of the forest for the trees, Jeff Parsons and Town Manager Scott Cole collaborated with me to try to frame an understandable assessment of what is to be accomplished in the longer term within Mayville. This week's Mayville News carries the first part of our "white" paper and the second part will come the following week.

Remodeling Mayville: The impact of extending Bethel's sewer

The Sewer Plan: Briefly, the town is considering the construction of a sewer system in Mayville that would lie along US Route 2 from the new bridge to the River View Resort. The most complex part is the distribution system from the bridge to potential users located along both sides of the main highway to a point just beyond the Irving Station.

Twitchell Brook Estates is seen as the first main customer to be connected.

All residences/businesses have working septic systems — a fact that any sewer use policy must address.

Foundation for a walking-biking pathway form of sidewalk may be laid over the east side (main) sewer line.

Residents have expressed the need for a conventional neighborhood and business use sidewalk on the west side of the highway to connect predominantly business properties from the Norseman Inn to the Good Food Store.

Since 1985, Mayville has experienced a number of property changes that include upgrading the Bethel Airport, conception of the BIG Adventure Center for youth, adoption of the former Pierce home for restaurant use, construction of the Irving gas station, convenience and food store, changing Telstar Video into the Good Food Store and expansion of the former Twin Oaks Campground into a full outdoor camping and recreational facility known now as Bethel Outdoor Adventure.

Since 2001, three new developments have started up: Birch Wood, Twitchell Brook Estates and Mayville Junction Condos. From general statements made by these three developers, all three foresee future development in Mayville. The opening of Schiavi's Bethel Sales Center has introduced a feature not seen before; people visiting the sales center drive to and park at the center's parking area thus giving the visitor a chance to slowly and on foot look at the surrounding neighborhood.

Survey of Owner Preferences: During the weekend prior to Aug. 7, 19 of 21 Mayville property owners were surveyed as to their opinions on a general sewer system and laying sidewalks. All were in favor of a sidewalk system and 12 favored the sewer plan, five favored it depending on conditions and hook-up policy, one party deferred until more information was available and one party was opposed to the plan currently on the table. Those in favor plus those who favored it but had some reservations added up to 89 percent of those surveyed; in an election this percentage would be headlined as a landslide.

Mayville's topography along Route 2 from the Androscoogin bridge to the point where Twitchell Brook passes under the highway is basically flat at an elevation of 640 feet. The river bridge's elevation is above 640 feet so that a sewer line in Mayville would require at least one pumping station. From Twitchell Brook to the River View Resort ground elevation rises 40 feet to 680 feet. However, flooding in the low land should be of more concern to safe sewage disposal than need and cost of a pumping station. The 100-year and 50-year flooding levels rose above most of the building foundations in "lower" Mayville. This raises the possibility of disabling septic systems in flood times.

Mayville has nine historic homes with 19th Century period architecture dating from 1800 to 1901 as well as two traditional homes more than 75 years old. None are on the register of historic homes in Maine. Practically all of Mayville's intervale farmland is under cultivation.

Traffic Conditions and Business: Much of the business community in Mayville is hindered in reaching its full potential because of traffic speed and driver intentions for using Route 2 as a thruway. In October 2005, the opening of the state's new snowmobile and general recreation bridge created a real possibility of encouraging pedestrians and bicycles to visit Mayville.

It opens new vistas for the bridge crossing public. And, with further sidewalk-pathway extensions, the sidewalk plan could remedy lower Mayville's problem of zip-thru traffic. Therefore along with a proposed public health sewer extension plan, Mayville owners are most interested in a sidewalk development plan. Pedestrian and bicycling safety will be a major factor in laying out this part of the community plan. For example Gorham, N.H., has controlled traffic with frequent crosswalks and lowered speed limits. If Gorham can do it, why cannot Mayville do it? Speed limits in Gorham, on the same Route 2, have not impaired private travel nor deterred truck traffic to other less profitable routes. (End of part one.) Part two will talk about some of the long-range implications of improving Mayville's infrastructure.

After the Monday night, Aug. 14, joint meeting of the board of selectmen and the budget committee, more follow-up will be going on at the town office as the first two choices for financing the sewer project are worked out in more detail.

Allen Cressy, Planning Board chairman, opened the meeting's discussion by reviewing Mr. Pelletier's current level of site development approvals. Twitchell Brook is approved to construct 22 condos but the sewer planners have assumed that 38 users will eventually make up the total number of rate payers there. Mr. Cressy made it clear that a complete amendment to Mr. Pelletier's application must be approved before he gets a green light for an additional 16 units. The amendment may have to be run some state flagpoles in the process.

The town manager's job will be (1) to pin down if the project can be funded entirely by private money i.e. by developer Mike Pelletier and Irving Oil; and (2) do the legal math for obtaining additional funding from within the sewer district itself. This latter step has the goal of avoiding any taxpayer involvement. The issue of revising ordinances was also discussed with a view on how the town's code will affect Mayville residents in the path of later sewer construction once the first phase is working. The meeting seemed to have run out of steam when it got to the agenda item on sidewalks — the time was a few minutes before 9 p.m.

I will be in Plano, Texas next week. But if you have news to e-mail to me send it along to Donald@thebetheljournals.info.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte
We are experiencing mid-September weather in mid-August.

Mornings are cold. It was 39 degrees on Saturday. The fog is setting over the lake in the early a.m. as it does other years. After the sticky heat of July it is a relief, especially to women over 50.

The lovely lilies have faded and gone. Brown, ugly canes remain ready to be chopped off. It's long past dead heading.

Several new buildings are being built in Upton. New foundations on Route 26 and Mill Road are waiting for new homes.

The Ladies Aid Building is taking shape with the new siding. The builders have discovered the old building has a carpenter ant problem in one of the main beams. This will be attended to, thanks to private donations to the private building fund.

Money is very tight. Another fair will be held on Aug. 23 at the Ladies Aid Building to help finance the project. Many crafts have been prepared. Simone Lavalley has made oodles of articles. All the members are working hard to make it a success. Chances on a "Loom" quilt and many other articles will be available. The ladies receive this week's "Atta Girl" for their efforts to preserve this historical building.

Richard LeComte is home from a month's incarceration in various hospitals and rehabilitation centers. He was discharged to home last week. Due to his own efforts at physical therapy he is doing well. Every day he is able to do more tasks.

I love this time of year when all the gardens are producing goodies.

We don't have a veggie garden, but I do have a potted tomato with three greenies that will never ripen.

Jeanette and Lionel Roy left some great cucumbers, squash, beans and lettuce. Jennifer Casey brought beautiful big raspberries, which never made it to the table. Thank you good neighbors.

Hello to John Brown at rehab in Norway. He was a great roommate for Richard.

Jennifer Casey has returned from Indiana where she attended a Wildlife Biologist seminar.

Sue Nelson spent last week with granddaughter MacKenzie Murray in Thomaston.

The annual Wildlife Festival in Errol this weekend was a great success in spite of the cold and intermittent rain.

The Bouchard family has returned to South Carolina. School starts early down there. Mom Michelle is a teacher and school keeps.

Labor Day and "Back to School" are around the corner. Where did summer go? Winter seemed to take much longer.

Pat and Lennie of Stoneham sponsored a fine reunion for the Angevine family. It was an awesome time. A tent and tables were set up for comfort, music, good food and family made for a memorable day.

Visiting in town this week are Frank and Dave Tucker, who brought some wonderful baby plum tomatoes.

They are super delicious. Linda and Woody Gerstenlauer spent the weekend with the Wixoms.

The Taylor clan worked on various projects related to their new foundation.

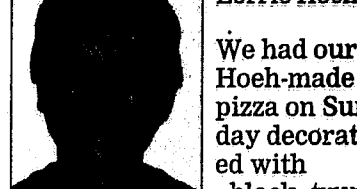

Barbara and C.J. Stratton are expected this week. Illness in the family has kept them away.

The "Bird of the Week," believe it or not, is the snow bunting. A flock of them in summer plumage were seen outside of Errol.

The "Thought for the Week" is, if you haven't heard a good rumor by noon, make your own.

West Bethel

by Lorrie Hoeh

We had our Hoeh-made pizza on Sunday decorated with black trumpet mushrooms that Mike and I picked near the forest road on our morning walk. Black trumpets are in the same family as chanterelles, which we have also had in abundance this year, thanks to all the moisture. The trumpets grow in moist places near oak and beech trees, and they hide very well, looking for all the world like just some more dried-up leaves. They are, however, a real taste treat.

Those gentians I mentioned last week have popped out quite a bit in the past week, proving me mistaken in my description of them — they grow much taller than I had said. Some are as tall as 15 or more inches. The first one I saw was smaller, and I had forgotten how tall they can be. Mea culpa.

It was certainly a busy week and weekend in Bethel, what with the Maine Performing Arts Festival on the common and elsewhere in town, and Sudbury Canada Days being celebrated at the Bethel Historical Society. Those who partook of the MPAF were rewarded by many talented performers, good music, circus camp for the children, professional theater at Bingham Auditorium, and a general atmosphere of fun and enjoyment. We especially enjoyed a performance of "The Servant of Two Masters" by an excellent troupe of players. Those who stayed home missed a good bet.

Friday, Saturday, and Sunday saw the 27th annual Sudbury Canada Days, with eighteenth century re-enactors camped out on the grounds of the Moses Mason House, punctuating the days with musket fire from time to time. There were also craft demonstrations, a flower show, an art show, and a river drivers' bean supper, among other things. I was there spinning baby alpaca yarn and noticed a great deal of backing and forth between the common's activities and those of the BHS.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department

A couple of weeks ago I got together with a dear friend that I haven't seen in quite a while.

Jim and I have been friends for over 20 years and it was great to have the opportunity to talk and catch up on each other's families. We worked together years ago and both our families became good friends and even though Jim and his family moved to New Hampshire, we have always kept in touch.

Old friends are a bit like a favorite pair of pants. You may not wear them very often and they may be getting a little worn around the edges, but when you put them on they are oh so comfortable.

So, with a good friend it's easy to just pick up where you left off as if there has been no time lapse at all. However, the nature of our conversations has certainly changed quite a bit over the years.

Jim and I are the same age so we have always been equals in aging, though I do have to admit that he is doing a better job of it than I am.

We used to talk a lot about our careers, future goals, child raising and things like that. Those are still sort of topics of discussion, but now it's how well our 401Ks are doing and at what age do we hope to retire and how our adult children are getting along. And, I'm sure I probably bored him with stories about my grandchildren. I'm not being selfish in that regard, Jim doesn't have any grandchildren as of yet. I always suspected that he was a late bloomer.

The purpose of our recent meeting wasn't just to talk about old times or to catch up on our families or even to discuss which one of us has more atrophying body parts than the other. We got together because Jim sells long-term care insurance and he thought it was time we had "that talk."

I can tell you that nothing will dull a conversation quicker than being told what the odds are that you will end up in a nursing home. If I don't die instantly from accidental death, heart attack or brain aneurysm, the odds are about 1 in 2 that I'll end up needing long-term care.

We got together because Jim sells long-term care insurance and he thought it was time we had "that talk."

And if that wasn't enough to add a few more gray hairs to my aging head, the fact that everything I have worked so hard for all my life, my home and what other meager assets I have will be snatched up to pay for the almost guaranteed long-term care, was enough to turn my hair snow white.

I know my friend has to make a living and I know that he is probably right, but in terms of having a fun, relaxing get-together with an old friend this little tête-à-tête didn't rank real high on the joy-o-meter.

My white head was spinning from thoughts of my future with Depends and sippy cups. And, if that wasn't bad enough, Jim punctuated this little talk with telling me that my odds of being accepted for long-term care insurance will go down tremendously in the next few years.

I'm in sales too, so I know a sales pitch when I hear one, but it does make sense that the closer you are to residency in Shady Rest Manor, the less likely a company is going to provide you with the insurance to pay for it.

I walked away from the meeting thinking that, "I can't believe we just had such a conversation." I have years to go before I can retire and my future with Depends and sippy cups is a long way off if at all.

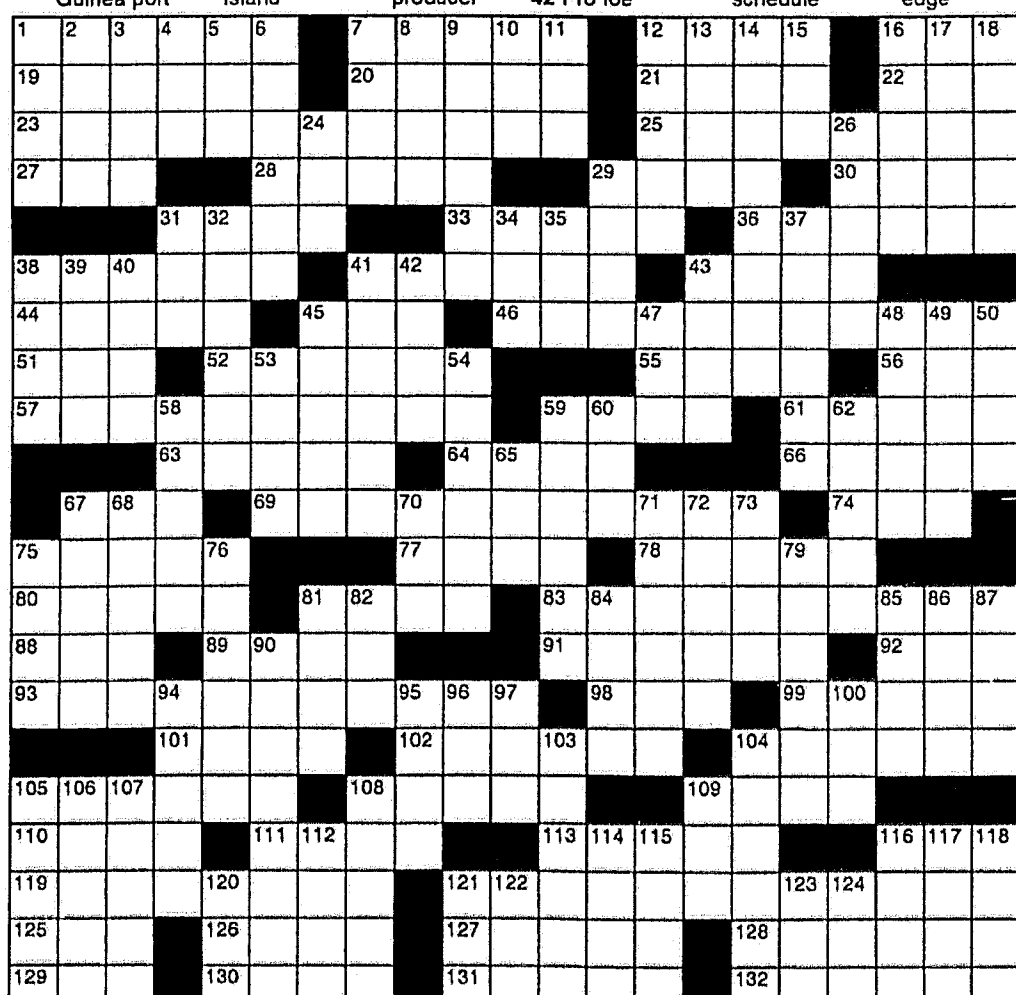

I decided that the best thing I could do is to put all of those odds and statistics right out of my mind. Even though Jim is a dear friend, he is after all, trying to make a sale.

A few days ago my husband and I went shopping and stopped at a pizza shop for lunch. We were having a nice time laughing about the antics of one of the grandkids when I noticed a discount on the receipt for the pizza. SENIOR CITIZEN DISCOUNT 64 cents. I was so stunned I couldn't even gum anymore of my pizza. The girl who waited on me, one who isn't even as old as my underwear, never even asked, she just assumed I was a senior citizen.

Henry tried to console me by saying that I was young at heart. And though that may be true it didn't help much because he reminded me that the rest of my body is not exactly in sync with my heart.

I got up from the table and when Henry asked where I was going I told him I was going to go call Jim about that insurance because the way I see it, I must be a whole lot older than I think.

Jane Hosterman had her Sunday lunch at the Mundt-Allen Post American Legion's annual summer cookout. She said that about 50 people enjoyed the meal. Following that, Jane sat in on a lecture at the Historical Society by Tom Hubka, the author of "Big House, Little House, Back House, Barn." She had bought a signed copy of the book about twenty years ago and had the good fortune to have the author do a house sketch and sign "To Jane—again."

That afternoon, Barbara Mahler and Jane attended the old-fashioned hymn sing at the Middle Intervale Meeting-house, along with 25 or 30 others. It sounds as if a rollicking good time was had by all. Also on Sunday there was an open house at the old one-room Newry Schoolhouse on Sunday River Road. What an exhausting weekend!

The Grange flea market continues each weekend, so you still have a chance to find that certain something without which you cannot exist.

Last Wednesday, Bethel Senior Citizens met at Stony Brook Campground. Bruce Powell, their host, cooked some very tasty burgers and franks for the multitude assembled.

On Monday I drove to Portland to collect my 15-year-old grandson, Owen Griffin, who took the Trailways bus up from Boston. He is spending the week visiting us and his Bethel cousins, the Siegels and Schwarzes, as well as his Boston buddy, Graham Thompson. Owen's younger brother, Robbie, was to come up on Tuesday with his friend, Warren Thompson, Graham, and their mother, Val Uber. Val and husband Taylor Thompson have a house on the Flat Road, the old Grover place, which they have restored and use as a vacation home.

It has felt more like September than August for several days, with nighttime temperatures falling into the 40s on more than one occasion. I hope that by the time this sees print, summer will have returned for a few more days. We're just beginning to see ripe tomatoes and peppers and would hate to see them get frosted before we've had our fill. Let me know what you're seeing, hearing, doing, and harvesting. Call or write: 836-3011; dhoeh@megalink.net.

July was hotter than usual. One night last week was the hottest 24 hours on record. Now we are back to more normal summer temperatures. Several mornings have been in the 40s here. This makes for better sleeping.

On Sunday, Aug. 20, the Rev. Herb Adams will be the speaker at West Summer Universalist Church at 11 a.m. All are welcome. He was minister here in West Paris for several years.

Son Joe and grandson Leighton Lamb spent a week with me while his wife, Micki, attended a course in Social Service at Colby College. Joe, Leighton and I spent two nights in Augusta with daughter Peggy. I did not neglect the walking for the dog, Mzie, needed exercise. We walked around the Psychiatric Hospital and several state office buildings for they are nearby. We also walked in the State Pine Tree Arboretum across the highway from their home. Many plants have been set out along the paths. Several different lilies were in bloom. We saw a large mother deer with a smaller half-grown baby. Several benches are placed along the way for one to sit and enjoy the solitude in the midst of a busy city.

One evening I visited my sister-in-law, Elaine Blossom from North Branford, Conn., who is visiting her sister, Jeanne Whittemore in Norway. They are planning a week at Littlefield's Beaches and I will join them for a few days.

Blackberries are plentiful this summer and I have a friend that invited me to pick as many as I could use. Just plain fresh is the best and was very good on my cereal too. I froze a few and also made three pies.

Buffy visited the vet and was clipped. His eye pupils were greatly dilated and was told he has cataracts. They do not operate on them. I now am keeping closer watch on him when he is out. He is eating his tuna as usual and enjoying being outside. He must be in his early twenties. He chose to live with me 16 years ago.

It seems like we have been quite busy with one thing or another this past week, but most of what we have been doing is not exciting enough to put in the column.

Hugh and I saw Don Katlin the other day. He said that Eleanor Pugliese, his neighbor on the Bog Road, has been a little under the weather lately. Good thoughts go out to Eleanor for a speedy recovery.

Howard Reiche let us know that Stevie is doing all right. She will be in rehab for about another week and then should be able to go home.

I am not a big fan of milkweed, but I have let three plants grow beside my front step and they are about four feet tall now. It has paid off because there are at least two caterpillars feeding on the leaves.

Most of the leaves will be eaten before they hang upside down and turn into the pupa stage, which is the last form they take before turning into the monarch butterfly. It is really quite a sight to see if you are lucky enough to time it just right to see the butterfly emerge.

This past weekend Hugh noticed a very large bird in one of the trees out back of the house. It was quite a bit bigger than the crows that were creating a commotion. We decided it was some kind of a hawk, but could not get close enough to tell what kind. When Hugh looked at the hawk through the binoculars, he could see hummingbirds flying around it. I decided to go outside to get a better look and a picture. He watched me for awhile and then decided it was time to leave.

LEAGUE CHAMPS—The Bethel Little League girls' softball team had an undefeated season with a 14-0 record. The girls won the Oxford Hills Little League Championship on Aug. 5, defeating Norway 6-3. The Bethel team outplayed their opposing teams during this season with a combined 213 runs vs. 35 runs. Congratulations girls on a great season! My brother, Steve McLain, brought some more produce from his garden. This time he had some blackberries. Hugh and I decided to go and pick some ourselves, and believe me, we have got the scratches to prove it! If you have ever picked blackberries, you know what I mean.

Selectmen's Meeting
There was a selectmen's meeting on Aug. 9. Fernand Corriveau and Paul Handlen were present and Mark Wigley was unable to attend due to vacation.

Bev Corriveau reported that the phone line for the Town Hall will be installed in a couple of weeks.

The Special Town Meeting that was to be held on Aug. 19 was postponed. The selectmen felt that there was not enough information on the issues at this point to present to the voters.

Dan Cole, sexton, attended the meeting and presented maps of the Lary Cemetery that he has been working on.

Sadly we report the passing of Jane Taylor, a longtime summer resident at Howard Pond. With her husband, Ray, they had lived in several Maine communities including Rumford, Millinocket, and Portland.

She was born Jane Klade and she grew up in Tomahawk, Wis. Jane graduated from Milwaukee Downer College. She married Ray Taylor and they raised a son, Charles, and a daughter, Jennifer (Krecklow). She had four grandchildren. Jane loved art. At Howard Pond they stayed at "The Grand Heap" and "Wish-A-Might" where her artistic nature is evident.

A family memorial took place Aug. 13, and a celebration of Jane's life will be held for family and friends over the Labor Day weekend in Tucson, Ariz.

The Hanover Board of Selectpersons will meet at the Town Office on Tuesday, Aug. 22, at 5 p.m.

A few weeks ago, one of my nieces got stung by a bee on my deck, and I didn't think much about it; those random acts of terror occur occasionally. Sometime after that, I got stung lightly by a black and white hornet, again on my deck. I kind of scanned around, but couldn't see any nests, so I forgot about it. A few days later, I was just walking on the lawn about 10 or 12 feet from the deck when I got stung again; this time he got me good. Then, I smartened up! I looked around, and there it was — one of those gray spherical nests about eight inches in diameter hung under the deck railing at just the right angle that it wasn't visible from the deck. But, it was certainly visible from the front lawn, as were a number of black and white hornets buzzing around the entry hole. The nest encompassed some Christmas light wires that I leave hanging on the railing year 'round, so it was not going to be easily removed without "stirring up a hornets' nest." Several angry black and white hornets made a beeline for me, so both Snuffy and I beat a hasty retreat to plot our hornets' nest removal strategy.

I then donned a pair of long jeans, a long-sleeve flannel shirt (even though it was a hot day), and a straw cowboy hat with one of Mona's mosquito head nets. Then, armed with a spray can of "Flying Insect Killer," a large brown paper grocery bag, a pair of heavy leather gloves and my seven-foot stepladder, I attacked. First, the spray into the hole in the nest; but the bees started coming out! More spray, until the can ran empty. Nothing to do but take the grocery bag, ignore the angry bees and squeeze the bag around the nest. Trouble with the Christmas light wires! Well, just squeeze the bag and as many bees as possible inside it. Ouch! One of them stung my neck. I took my bag of bees and got away from there. Over to the outdoor fireplace; soaked the bag in charcoal lighter fluid and set fire to it. There! That took care of most of them. The few remaining bees buzzed around the deck railing for a while, but with no nest or queen there, they eventually disappeared. Success!

Karlene Bachelder's sister, Wilma Stewart from Unity, visited for a week and left for home on Aug. 7. While here they drove to Stratton to celebrate their class reunions. Karlene said there were only six in her class and two of them made it to their 60th. It was Wilma's 59th. They saw their cousins, Robert York and his wife, Mary, from Florida, who also participated in the reunion.

On Friday, David and Mary Stewart of Albion, Karlene's nephew and Wilma's son, stopped in on their way home from Storyland.

Late Saturday evening Brent Bachelder arrived home. They surprised Gilberte Seeley by changing plans and instead of their usual luncheon, all four of them had breakfast at the Cinnamon Stick Café Sunday morning. Gil did not know that Brent was home until he showed up at the Café. He stayed until the 9th. His long-time friend and school buddy from Telstar High, Jim Gorman, was home visiting from California. They had lots of catching up to do, and Brent and Jim did just that.

The Puzzle Mountain Bakery is now offering homemade jams and jellies along with the variety of pies, which are all made on the premises.

On Wednesday, I stopped to gas up the car at the Bear River Trading Post. Dick and Betty Clark were there having one of the famous Coney Island hot dogs. We chatted a bit before I left for the recycling center. Doug, of the Trading Post, said he has lots of gear for fishing which include spinning rod combos, lures, line, nets and hats for sale. Stop by to see if any of these items will help catch a large fish.

I drove back to the recycling center on Sunday and met Ann Friedlander and her sister from Connecticut. We had a nice chat and discussed our wisteria vines. I cut mine down but she said her vine had bloomed last year. David gave me a bag of wood for kindling — I actually had a fire going today. Everything we haul away from the center is one more item that the center doesn't have to pay to have hauled away.

Sandee and Leon Dunn spent a week at South Arm on Richardson Lake. During the week Vicki and Eric Lowell and their dog, Nicki, visited for a few days. The weather was perfect for their vacation away from home.

South Woodstock

Library

News: A summer story hour is being held at Whitman Memorial Library. About 11 or 12 children are attending. Valerie Billings reported that Ciara Nadeau has been volunteering and doing a great job with stories and crafts. They would like to have two groups next year, one for pre-school and one for older children.

On Saturday, Aug. 19, the library will be having a special event to wrap up their summer program. It is specifically for the story hour children, but will be open to the public as well. Dana Perkins, magician and ventriloquist will be the guest, from 10 to 11 a.m. Mark your calendar.

Monthly programs for adults will be starting up on the second Thursday of September and local author Nancy Draper will be the first guest.

You can visit the library and enjoy the paintings of a local artist, Elena Noyes, on display right now.

Tommy Poland had Joan Poland and myself up to her home here on Curtis Hill for a light lunch and visiting. We usually get together for each other's birthdays, but we have been busy so it was a delayed get-together for my birthday in July. We had a nice time visiting and showing pictures of family members.

Our next-door neighbors have returned home after traveling to Michigan to visit with family members.

Frances Noyes is recuperating after an operation. I wish her a speedy recovery and hope she feels better soon.

I received a card from my niece, Vicky Curry, Tempe, Ariz. She said she had a wonderful time here in Maine last month and wants to come again next year. She sent a few pictures. Vicky is my sister, Dorothy's daughter.

Richard has been busy mowing the Union church area and other places. He's happy he now has his mower back from the shop. He does a good job. He also tends the flowers each day at the corner by the town of Woodstock sign.

I just love the beautiful weather we are having.

Kellie Wing and Vinny Lima spent a couple of days at the coast during her vacation.

Joan Poland is helping her granddaughter, Amy Bru, who takes care of children while their parents are working.

Paul Cox brought us several cucumbers from his garden. They were delicious. Thanks, Paul.

Grange 124

night with 10 members present.

On Aug. 28, the Grange will help the Legion Auxiliary with a Blood Drive. Any information about it call Olive Risko. Several sick members were reported. Next meeting is Music Night and the public is invited to attend. Program was as follows: opening thought, Bertha DeHaas; song by all, "In the Good Old Summer Time; roll call; some favorite thing you do or used to do in the summer; Happy Birthday was sung to all August birthday members; reading, Old Porch Swing by Lucille Robbins; music by Dot Canwell, Yvonne Nowlin and Bertha DeHaas; Yvonne sang; also Bertha, Jackie Stevens and Dot sang; reading by Richard Felt, The path that leads to nowhere; closing thought; and closing song.

Services at the Baptist Church are Sunday School at 9:15 a.m., morning service at 10:30 a.m., evening service at 6 p.m. Wednesday evening is prayer meeting at 6:30.

Whitman Memorial Library will be having a special event to wrap up the summer program on Saturday, Aug. 19 from 10 to 11 a.m. It is the story hour for children but will be open to the public as well. Dana Perkins, a magician and ventriloquist, will be the special guest. There is no charge.

Sympathy is extended to Bob Coolidge and his family on the death of his wife.

Remember Music Night at the Grange Hall on Monday, Aug. 21. The public is welcome as this is an open meeting. Time: 7 p.m.

Remember the Historical Society will hold History Day on Saturday, Aug. 19 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. See the Museum exhibits, buy food and flea market items, and enjoy crafts as well. The society will put its best foot forward for this special annual celebration.

Curator Larry Billings has planned an exhibit for History Day. They have regular exhibits of Woodstock memorabilia, antiques, and art, which are truly splendid. Ruth Cox is collecting items for the flea market; give your donations to her. They hope to have a good turnout, as this year they only have the one celebration. They are still open Saturdays from 1 to 4 p.m. until September.

Mary Billings has given some photos of the Baptist Church's 150th Anniversary to the Historical Society. The society keeps tabs on most things that happen in Woodstock. They want an accurate record of the life of the community in the museum. You should look at the writings of the late Ruby Emery found there also. She did so much to preserve town history. The society sold a book through the Maine Line Products. Thanks, Jane Mills gave some material on President Hayes to the society. Thanks, President Olive Risko and Curator Larry Billings watched the museum Aug. 5. There were two visitors.

Larry took down the exhibit on the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

Described as a man of great energy and industry, Edwards began assembling his farm in the 1930s. He grew apples, grapes, potatoes, timber and any other crop that would make money. He built and ran a barrel factory, a produce packing house and was one of the largest seasonal employers of area residents. In the winter, he used oxen to skid pack barrels of produce to the Poland rail head terminal by crossing the frozen Thompson Lake.

Coffee and doughnuts will be available at 8:30 a.m. Applewood Farm is located at 216 Forrest Edwards Road, approximately 1-1/2 miles from the Otisfield Elementary School on Powhatan Road off Route 121 coming from the north. Signs will be posted. Coming from the south, Mayberry Hill Road becomes Powhatan Road when it goes from Casco to Otisfield. From the intersection of Mayberry Hill Road and Route 121 in Casco village, take a right onto Mayberry Hill Road. At the stop sign at the top of the hill, take a left and go 2.2 miles (past the cemetery on the right) to Forrest Edwards Road on the right. Applewood Farm is exactly one mile on the left. Questions should be directed to chapter president, Bill Haynes, at 583-2963 or forest@maine.com.

From
Mundt-Allen Post

The Bethel Mundt-Allen Post and Unit 81 held their annual picnic at the post home on Sunday, Aug. 13. A total of 47 members and guests attended and enjoyed steak, chicken and choice of many different excellent salads and desserts. The ladies of the auxiliary performed their usual outstanding setup, serving and cleaning functions and arranged everything to make the self-service lines move smoothly. The fellows manning the grills got most of the steaks and chicken done to everyone's satisfaction.

A big "Thank You" goes out to all the ladies who provided the potluck dishes and desserts.

This year the post decided to collect a nominal fee from all attendees in order to defray the cost of steaks and chicken and keep the post finances healthy.

In a nutshell, "A good time was had by all!"

From
Bethel Senior Citizens

The Bethel Senior Citizens Club met Aug. 9 at Stony Brook Campground for their meeting and picnic.

Thanks go to the Powells for their hospitality and also to Bruce Powell and Roger Twitchell for cooking the hamburgers and hot dogs. Members brought salads and desserts to share.

The next meeting will be Sept. 13 at the Rooster's Roadhouse in Mayville. Price of dinner is $7.50. Meeting will start at 11 a.m. Members will bring items for the auction.

From Maine Handicapped Skiing

This Sept. 8-10, veterans with physical disabilities are invited to take part in Maine Handicapped Skiing's 2nd annual summer Veterans/No Boundaries program located at Pine Tree Camp, a fully accessible outdoor camp, in Rome, Maine. The summer program offers lessons in cycling, canoeing, kayaking, cycling, martial arts, and fishing—all free of charge. Veterans (and their significant others) stay in rustic camp cabins with meals, sports activities and equipment provided by Maine Handicapped Skiing. Veterans are asked to provide their own transportation to the camp.

September's program is the third Veterans/No Boundaries session offered by Maine Handicapped Skiing, Maine's largest year-round adaptive recreation program serving adults and children with physical disabilities. The newest addition to Maine Handicapped Skiing's nationally recognized adaptive recreational programs, Veterans/No Boundaries provides recreational activities to any veteran with a physical disability who requires adaptive equipment or techniques to participate in sports.

Maine Handicapped Skiing's goal, through Veterans/No Boundaries, is to help any veteran with a physical disability to integrate back into his/her community with new self-confidence, physical strength, and skills through participation in adaptive recreational activities.

The ultimate goal of Maine Handicapped Skiing is to introduce adaptive sports to disabled veterans and active duty military personnel from the most recent worldwide conflicts who have recently completed their rehabilitation and are eager to participate in summer and winter adaptive sports.

The Veterans/No Boundaries program is supported by the generosity of western Maine businesses, individuals and many American Legion posts throughout Maine. Veterans/No Boundaries is coordinated by a volunteer planning committee that includes numerous veterans, local business people and Maine Handicapped Skiing staff. Several veterans serving on the committee are currently participants and/or volunteers at Maine Handicapped Skiing in winter and summer sports activities.

To learn more about Maine Handicapped Skiing's September Veterans/No Boundaries programs, please e-mail Judy Sullivan at julsullivan@skimhs.org or Wendy Iseman at wiseman@skimhs.org, or call (800) 639-7770. The September program registration closes Aug. 18. To learn more about Maine Handicapped Skiing, Maine's largest adaptive recreation program for adults and children with physical disabilities, go to www.skimhs.org, call (800) 639-7770 or e-mail MHS at info@skimhs.org.

$2,000 Grant
Maine Handicapped Skiing (MHS) recently received a $2,000 grant from the Western Mountains Fund of the Maine Community Foundation (MCF) to fund the development of a community outreach program to schools and civic, health and veterans groups on the importance of adaptive recreation for adults and children with physical disabilities.

The grant will allow Maine Handicapped Skiing to purchase new equipment to create presentations in a variety of settings throughout Maine. "Our goal is to train ten MHS participants and ten volunteers to do presentations across the state of Maine," explained Wendy Iseman, development and public relations director at MHS. "The personal experiences and challenges of our participants and volunteers tell a wonderful story and now we can help them do that through state-of-the-art audio-visual equipment."

Maine Handicapped Skiing will be celebrating its 25th anniversary in 2007. MHS has grown into a year-round adaptive recreation program serving over 290 people with physical disabilities with the help of over 390 volunteers. MHS has maintained its mission of providing free winter lessons in alpine and Nordic skiing, snowboarding, and snowshoeing in the winter and summer lessons in canoeing, kayaking, cycling and golf in the summer. For information on Maine Handicapped Skiing, call (800) 639-7770 or visit their website at www.skimhs.org.

From
Western Maine University and Community College Center

This fall Western Maine University and Community College Center (WMUCC) will offer a course via teleconferencing titled "Holocaust — From Prejudice to Genocide." This

Middle Intervale Meetinghouse Exhibit 190th Anniversary

The 190th anniversary of the Middle Intervale Meetinghouse's construction will be celebrated on Saturday, Aug. 26, with festivities commencing at 5 p.m. Following a picnic potluck supper, participants will move into the meetinghouse to listen to pianist Ross Swain play old favorites. The Meetinghouse Society's annual meeting will follow, and will include a short talk about the building's history by Stephen Seames.

Built in 1816 and extensively remodeled circa 1857, the meetinghouse is Bethel's oldest and most historic civic/religious structure. The meetinghouse is situated on Intervale Road, approximately three and one-half miles downriver of Bethel Hill village. The structure was once the site of Bethel town meetings, as well as Baptist and Methodist church services, and is cared for today by the Middle Intervale Meetinghouse Society, organized in 1978 to preserve this important local landmark.

The exhibit includes artifacts from the meetinghouse and photographs and printed sermon and tune books belonging to the meetinghouse in mid-19th Century. Also, included in the exhibit is the lamp given by Grace Cummings Buck (1894-1991), longtime member of the church and a gracious donor in its restoration.

The exhibit can be seen at Brooks Bros., on Main Street, Bethel, until noon on Saturday, Aug. 26, when it will be moved to the meetinghouse for the picnic and annual meeting.

The Aug. 26 party is open to the public and free. It was made possible through the kindness of Brooks Bros. Hardware, Jack Brooks and Jeri Brooks Greenwell.

The anniversary events are free and open to the public. For further information, please contact Al Cressy at 824-0508 or Stephen Seames at 824-3393.

Intermittent cloudy and sunny skies were the state of the weather for the 27th annual 2006 Sudbury Canada Days, the Bethel Historical Society's annual summer heritage festival, which featured a variety of activities to engage the interest of a wide audience of all ages.

The name of the festival harkens back to Bethel's original name, Sudbury Canada, in use from the granting of the township in 1768 until the incorporation of the town in 1796. The early name honored the original grantees from Sudbury, Massachusetts, who had fought unsuccessfully to conquer Canada in 1690. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts rewarded these men with land in the "District of Maine," naming it in honor of their Massachusetts town and the campaign in which they served. Bethel was never part of Canada. There were once more than a dozen "Canada" townships in northern New England at one time. This festival honors the town's rich heritage dating from the 18th century.

As 2006 marked the 225th anniversary of what is often referred to as "New England's last Indian raid," this milestone was highlighted by a memorial service and other ceremonies by 18th century re-enactors who were present throughout the three day festival.

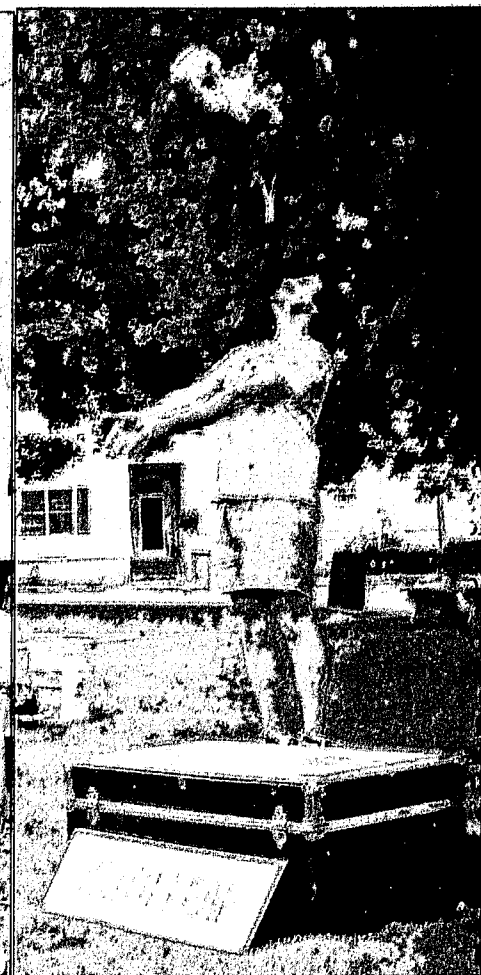

Events for the weekend began on Friday with the 15th annual Hall Memorial Lecture, which in honor of the society's 40th anniversary of its founding, focused on New England history. David H. Watters, Ph.D, director of the University of New Hampshire's Center for New England Culture, made a presentation, "New England's Legacy: Memory and Identity in an American Region." This was held in the meeting room of the Dr. Mason House. In his remarks, Dr. Watters, who was educated at Dartmouth College and holds a Ph.D. from Brown University, quoted extensively from a variety of noteworthy individuals, who have attempted to understand the New England mind throughout its long history.

Saturday's events began with tours of the re-enactors camp, which included a tinsmith and physician as well as several demonstrations typical of 18th century life. The horseshoe tournament began around 10 a.m. and continued throughout the day. Winners were first Darryl Pratt; Alan Pratt, second, and Wally Hamlin, third.

In the afternoon, the children's parade kicked off the formal beginning of the day's events. This year's theme in honor of the Indian Raid anniversary was "Indians and Early Settlers." Winners in this contest included, first in "Cleverest" was Elisa Dyer of Upton, first in "Most Authentic" was Tim Dunn of Winthrop; second, Alexandra Kuehne, Waterville; "Prettiest" was first Jordan Kulig of Rumford Point and second Johanna Kuehne of Waterville; and first in "Judge's Choice" was Curtis Dunn of Winthrop and second Austin Hill of Feeding Hills, Mass.

Flower show participants included bouquets from Bessie Bennett, Amy Davis, Wende Gray, Bettyann Hastings, Harry Kuzyk, Danna Nickerson, John Payne, Pooh Corner Farm, Steve Seames, Sally

Taylor and Jane Vogt. Demonstrating old-time crafts were Alden Kennett, axe handle making; Grace McKivergan, weaving; Lorrie Hoeh, spinning; Mabel Kennett and Lucy Nordahl, quilting; Eileen LaPerle, basket-making; and Ann Carlson, penny rug making.

Among the old-time children's games played during the afternoon were sack, three legged, egg and spoon, suitcase, and farmer and crow races, clothespin drop, battle of the oranges, and finally ice cream eating contest. Winners included Elissa Dyer of Upton; Jordan Kulig, Rumford Point;

Tim Dunn, Winthrop; Curtis Dunn, Winthrop; Austin Hill, Feeding Hills, Mass.; Alexandra Kuehne, Waterville; Johanna Kuehne, Waterville; Jackson Humphrey, Hanover, MA; Rob Fogarty, Falmouth, Mass.; Allison Humphrey, Hanover, Mass.; Dillon Gaudet, Mexico; Bradley Sperl, Minot. Croquet tournament winners were Elissa Dyer, Upton and Jordan Kulig, Rumford Point. Many thanks are due the volunteers who oversaw the games, David Meltzer of East Providence, R.I., Brenda Dyer of Upton and Barbara Moyer of Paris Hill and Wallingford, Conn.

An unidentified father and son team won the badminton tournament.

The art show was chaired by June Abbott and featured the works of a number of local artists. Historical videos were shown throughout the afternoon.

The logging/farming exhibit in the Hastings Homestead barn was hosted by Avery Angevine and Owen Wight. Nearly 100 took in the log-driver's bean supper, which was followed by an 18th century fashion show, courtesy of the re-enactors and music from that era as well.

On Sunday, there were more events by the re-enactors including a memorial service and commemoration of the 225th anniversary of the Indian Raid.

Folk Royalty, Tom Dean

Not many people stick with something for 27 years. Not unless they absolutely love what they're doing, and not without having some success at it. Tom Dean is a singer/songwriter, producer and musician that fits that description perfectly. Experience Tom Dean in concert on Sunday, August 20, when the Mahoosuc Arts Council's Bethel Bandstand Concert Series sponsors his performance at 4:00 PM on the Bethel Common.

In 1974, Tom embarked on a journey to New Hampshire that would change his life forever. Offered a job singing in a little pub for the summer he left Rhode Island, put everything he owned in a VW Bug and hit the road. Two years and many solo gigs later he joined the folk/rock group Devon-square. After ten years of touring and three independently released recordings the legendary Ahmet Ertegun, Chairman of Atlantic Records, signed Devon-square after hearing Tom's song "Walking On Ice" from the self-released CD of the same name. Devon-square went on to record another CD "Bye Bye Route 66" for Atlantic (which spawned the critically acclaimed single "If You Could See Me Now") tour internationally and to share stages with the likes of Bonnie Raitt, Peter Frampton and Steven Stills.

Tom's solo career is now his main focus. He has played almost every major music venue in the Northeast. His first solo release "Your Own Backyard" in 1999 brought much deserved respect for his songwriting, singing and production skills.

The Bethel Bandstand's final concert will feature the roots, rock and country music of The Wicked Sharps on August 27. The Bethel Bandstand Concerts are sponsored by Paula Gillies and Chris Otten. All concerts begin at 4:00 PM and run sixty to ninety minutes in length and are free to the public. The rain site is Bingham Auditorium on Church Street at Gould Academy.

Rick's Carpets

Hosting the open house at the Lower Sunday River Schoolhouse were Caroline Gould, Florence Morgan and Jane Young. A lecture by Tom Hubka entitled "Maine's Connected Farm Buildings: The Uncommon Architecture of Common Farmers," followed by a book signing of the second edition of his well-known book, "Big House, Little House, Back House, Barn" and his latest book, "Resplendent Synagogue: Architecture and Worship in an Eighteenth Century Polish Community." The final event, a hymn singing at the Middle Intervale Meetinghouse in the evening with Judy Webster at the piano, was a fitting conclusion to an event-filled weekend. Many thanks are due all the volunteers who helped make this weekend the special time it has become. Much gratitude is also due all those who baked pies for the bean supper.

Summer events sponsors who made the appearance of the Portland Brass Quintet, the Yankee Brass Band, and the 18th century re-enactors for Sudbury Canada Days possible were: June Abbott, William and Deborah Andrews, Al and Lee Barth, Bessie M. Obituaries

Melissa S. Sylvester, 36 of Main Street, Bethel, passed into the Lord's hands on Aug. 5, 2006 after a very long, courageous battle with cancer.

She was born in Lewiston, on May 22, 1970, a daughter to Beverly A. and Michael D. Sylvester Sr. She graduated from Telstar Regional High School in Bethel in 1988 and Newbury College in Brookline, Mass., in 1998.

Melissa had many hobbies: cross-stitching, reading, painting, animals and spending time with friends and relatives. She enjoyed life; she dealt with everything life threw her way with a great positive attitude, always thinking of others before herself. Everyone who met her walked away with a new look on life because of that same outlook she had on life. She will always be remembered for her smile, quick wit and her thoughts about what she could do for others.

She is survived by her parents; brother, Mike and his wife Jeanie; nieces, Courtney

Lee, and Cassandra; nephew, Gabriel; and many aunts, uncles and cousins. Maternal grandparents are Richard and Pat Kimball of East Bethel, and paternal grandmother is Beverly L. Sylvester of Andover. Melissa will be greatly missed by everyone who came into her life.

Memorial services will be held at the Bethel Alliance Church, Bethel, on Saturday, Aug. 26 at 10 a.m. with the Rev. Kevin Bellinger officiating. Memorials in Melissa's memory are requested to the American Cancer Society, Maine Division, Inc., 52 Federal Street, Brunswick, ME 04011 for research of brain tumors.

She loved to spend summers on Norway Lake at their cottage sharing many happy times with family and friends. She enjoyed dancing and card games especially bridge, canasta, and 63.
